INTRODUCTION

This study examines campaign finance activity undertaken by candidates for the Massachusetts Senate and House of Representatives (known collectively as The General Court) in calendar year 2022. The Office of Campaign and Political Finance has issued a report of this type after every state election since 1990.

The information contained in this legislative study is based on data compiled from campaign finance reports electronically filed by candidates and treasurers of political committees organized on behalf of candidates for the Massachusetts Senate and House. In 2022, 350 candidates sought legislative office and filed disclosure reports with OCPF: 76 running for 40 Senate seats, and 274 seeking one of 160 House seats.

Legislative candidates and their committees are in the depository system of reporting. Candidates file deposit reports with OCPF to disclose receipts (contributions). A bank files monthly reports showing total receipts, and itemizes expenditures based on check and debit card activity.

The Office of Campaign and Political Finance (OCPF) is an independent state agency that administers Massachusetts General Law Chapter 55, the campaign finance law. The law provides for disclosure and regulation of campaign finance activity on the state, county and municipal levels. The reports filed by state and county candidates and committees are available on the office's web site at ocpf.us.

This study was compiled and written based on information filed by candidates, committees and banks. Those seeking further information on the study or any other facet of the Massachusetts campaign finance law may contact the Office of Campaign and Political Finance by calling 617-979-8300.

Of the 350 legislative candidates in 2022, 76 were seeking one of 40 Senate seats and 274 were running for the 160-seat House.

One record was reached in 2022: Sen. Barry Finegold of Andover reported $622,149 in spending, a new record for Senate candidates. Former Senate President Therese Murray of Plymouth previously held the record, topping the expenditure list in 2012 with $513,164.

The number of candidates increased from 316 in 2020 to 350 in 2022. The lowest total ever recorded in OCPF studies, which have been compiled after each election since 1990, was 311 in 2008. The highest number of legislative candidates recorded in an OCPF study was 507 in 1990.

Twenty-seven new legislators were elected in 2022. The new legislators include five in the Senate and 22 in the House.

The findings for each of the two chambers of the Legislature are broken down in each of the two sections that follow this introduction.

SECTION I: THE SENATE

Average receipt totals in 2022 increased compared to the 2020 election. Senate candidates on average raised $72,741 in 2022, up from $62,556 in 2020. The record receipts average for Senate candidates is $93,370, set in 2004.

Average 2022 expenditures increased to $84,782, up from $57,392 in 2020. The highest expenditure average was $94,082, set in 2004.

Expenditures do not include debts incurred that had not been paid at the end of 2022.

Overall totals in both receipts and expenditures increased significantly in 2022, compared to the 2020 election season, held during the COVID 19 emergency.

A total of 76 candidates ran for the Senate in 2022, an increase of 20 from 2020. The Senate that was seated in January 2023 was made up of 37 Democrats and three Republicans.

The findings in greater detail:

I. Success of Campaigns

Winning candidates spent more money than their opponents. On average, Senate winners outspent unsuccessful candidates $113,582 to $52,781.

The candidate who spent the most and lost was Sean Dooley of Norfolk, who reported $366,278 in expenditures.

The winning candidate who spent the least amount of money, and was opposed, was Sen. John Keenan of Quincy, who reported $20,463 in expenditures.
