INTRODUCTION

This study examines campaign finance activity by political action committees in Massachusetts during the 2007-08 state election cycle.

The Office of Campaign and Political Finance (OCPF) administers Massachusetts General Laws Chapter 55, which provides for disclosure and regulation of campaign finance activity on the state, county and municipal levels. Several types of political committees in Massachusetts file reports with OCPF, including those organized on behalf of individual candidates for public office; committees promoting or opposing ballot questions; committees registered on behalf of political parties on the ward, town, city and state level; and political action committees (PACs) and people's committees.

PACs are political committees organized to receive and expend funds to support or oppose candidates, generally based on a unifying principle or purpose as defined in their original statements of organization. People's committees are committees that started as PACs, but receive contributions only from individuals at a maximum annual amount that is indexed biennially by OCPF every two years (the limit is now $147). Contributions from people's committees do not count toward a candidate's statutory limit on annual aggregate contributions from PACs. (Unless specifically noted otherwise, the term "PACs" in this report also includes people's committees.)

PAC Disclosure Requirements

Section 18 of Chapter 55 requires PACs to disclose their campaign finance activity in reports filed regularly with OCPF. The filing schedule varies by the year: PACs are required to file reports once for activity in a non-election year and three times for activity in a state election (even-numbered) year. In an election year, those reports are filed eight days prior to the primary election in September; eight days prior to the November election; and on the following Jan. 20. For a non-election year, the single report is due on the following Jan. 20.¹

Section 18C of Chapter 55 requires PACs with receipts or expenditures of more than $10,000 in a two-year election cycle to file their reports electronically with OCPF. Committees not meeting that threshold are not required to e-file, but are still encouraged to submit their reports electronically. Reports e-filed by PACs and all other candidates and committees may be found in OCPF's Electronic Filing System, which is accessible through the Electronic Filing section of OCPF's website, www.mass.gov/ocpf. For the time period covered by this report, PACs were required to disclose their account balances at the beginning of each reporting period; aggregate receipts for the reporting period; aggregate expenditures for the reporting period; in-kind contributions for the reporting period; itemized receipts over $50; itemized expenditures over $50; and all outstanding liabilities.

The maximum amount a PAC or people's committee may contribute to a Massachusetts candidate is $500 in a calendar year. The campaign finance law also sets an aggregate annual limit on what an individual candidate may receive in total from all PACs. That limit ranges from $150,000 for a candidate for governor to $18,750 for a Senate candidate and $7,500 for a House candidate. There is no limit on the aggregate amount a candidate may receive from people's committees.

Methodology

The statistical information contained in this study is based on information received by OCPF in campaign finance reports filed by PACs for the calendar years 2007 and 2008. Because the report is based primarily on the figures reported by PACs, not those provided by candidate's committees, the numbers contained herein are subject to amendment after a routine cross-check by OCPF with reports filed by candidates and committees. This study includes corrections, additions and deletions that may occur as a result of any review conducted by OCPF or amendments filed by PACs, candidates or political committees. However, some changes, especially those taking place after the spring of 2009, are not included in this study.

Those interested in determining the exact amount of PAC and people's committee contributions accepted by individual candidates and committees are advised to check those candidate and committee reports for the relevant time periods to determine the amounts that were accepted.

Some state and county candidates may also have held local office, such as a selectman or city councilor running for or serving in the state Legislature, but for the purposes of this report are considered state or county candidates. In addition, some legislative candidates may have sought local office, such as mayor, in 2007. They are also treated as state candidates in this study. The aggregate figures include candidates running in special elections in 2007 or 2008.

This study was compiled and written based on information filed by with the office by PACs. Those seeking further information on the study or any other facet of the Massachusetts campaign finance law may contact the Office of Campaign and Political Finance, John W. McCormack Building, One Ashburton Place, Room 411, Boston, MA 02108. This study and other data are available on the office's Web site, at www.mass.gov/ocpf.

FINDINGS

I. Overview

The 2007-08 election cycle saw political action committees in Massachusetts set several records, as new highs were reached for total expenditures, total receipts and total contributions made to state and county candidates.

PACs reached a new high for contributions to state and county candidates in the 2007-08 election cycle. The contribution total of $2,684,944 eclipsed the 2005-06 total by $87,967. The record was surpassed in an election cycle that did not have a statewide election.

The $1.49 million in contributions to state and county candidates in 2008 was a new annual high, surpassing the previous record set in 2006 by more than $47,379.

A new level was also reached in aggregate PAC expenditures. PACs reported a total of $5.824 million in expenditures for the 2007-08 election cycle, breaking the previous record of $5.6 million set two years before. Nearly half of the 2007-08 total went toward contributions to state, county and some municipal candidates (see chart on page 5). The rest was used for administrative costs as well as contributions to other PACs, parties and ballot question committees.

The 2007-08 PAC totals reflect a continuing trend of growth in PAC activity since the mid-1990s, when changes in the law led to a drop in the number of PACs and contributions by those committees. PACs have seen increases in such benchmarks as aggregate expenditures, contributions and the number of committees giving to candidates since the mid-1990s.

A total of 455 candidates were reported as recipients of at least one PAC contribution in 2007-08: 418 on the state or county level and 37 on the local level.

Union and labor PACs continued to be the top contributors in the 2007-08 cycle. Unions and labor organizations accounted for 17 of the top 20 PACs in terms of contributions, two more than the previous cycle.

PACs continued to direct the bulk of their contributions to the same types of candidates they have supported in the past. Legislative candidates, Democrats, incumbents and winners in the 2008 election were once again more likely to receive PAC contributions.

*State office includes any of the six statewide constitutional offices (Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Attorney General, Treasurer, Secretary of State or Auditor), Governor's Council, Senate and House of Representatives. County office includes District Attorney, Sheriff, County Commissioner, Clerk of Courts, Treasurer, Register of Deeds and Register of Probate.

The campaign finance law sets an aggregate annual limit on what an individual candidate may receive in total from all PACs. The limit ranges from $150,000 for a candidate for governor to $18,750 for a Senate candidate and $7,500 for a House candidate.

II. Breakdown of PAC Activity

Aggregate Spending

PACs reported spending a total of $5,824,461 in 2007-08, up 3.7 percent from the previous two-year cycle. The spending total is the highest ever recorded in a two-year cycle, surpassing the previous two-year high of $5,614,504 set in 2005-06. PAC expenditures for a cycle have exceeded $5 million only four times: in addition to the last three cycles, the mark was cracked in 1989-90, when total PAC spending reached $5,046,256.

Contributions from PACs to candidates (state, county and some municipal) accounted for 49 percent of all PAC spending in 2007-08, equaling the percentage from the 2005-06 cycle.

By law, a PAC may expend money only “for the enhancement of the principle” for which it was organized, which may include other categories of expenditures as long as those expenditures meet that test. Examples of additional spending by PACs include administrative and fundraising expenses, independent expenditures supporting or opposing candidates, and contributions to other political committees, including federal and state party committees, local and federal candidates not registered with OCPF and ballot question committees.

Massachusetts PACs reported total contributions to state and county candidates of $1,193,938 in 2007 and $1,491,006 in 2008, for a two-year total of $2,684,944. Contributions to candidates for mayor and councilor-at-large in the state’s five largest cities – Boston, Cambridge, Lowell, Springfield and Worcester – as well as to various other local candidates, amounted to an additional $111,175 in 2007 and $62,515 in 2008, for a two-year total of $173,690.

* This category is made up almost entirely of candidates for mayor and councilor-at-large in Boston, Cambridge, Lowell, Springfield and Worcester, who report their campaign finance activity to OCPF, but also includes some candidates for local office who have also sought state office and are still registered with OCPF.

Activity by Cycle

The $2,684,944 in PAC contributions to state and county candidates in 2007-08 is the highest ever recorded in a two-year election cycle since OCPF began tracking and publishing PAC activity in 1982. The cycle with the greatest activity prior to 2007-08 was 2005-06, in which PACs reported contributions of almost $2.6 million.

The list of the top ten election cycles in terms of PAC contributions is equally divided among cycles with elections for statewide offices and those that did not. As noted above, cycles that include a statewide election tend to feature a greater amount of PAC contributions. An exception is the 2007-08 cycle, which ranks first despite the absence of a statewide election.

Activity by Year

Total contributions to state and county candidates in 2008 reached an all-time high, eclipsing a record set two years earlier. The $1,491,006 posted in 2008 exceeded the 2006 total by more than $48,000. The 2007 total of $1.19 million is the ninth highest.

(e) = State election year. (s) = State election year that also included statewide offices.

(n) = Non-election year.

Average PAC Contribution

The average PAC contribution to an individual candidate in both 2007 and 2008 was $295, up $4 from 2006 and the largest figure recorded by OCPF in 25 years. The $331 average contribution figure posted in 1983 remains the record. The all-time lowest average was the $200 figure recorded in 1996.

While the 2007 and 2008 averages were not new records, the $295 figure recorded in 2007 was the largest ever for a non-election (odd-numbered) year. The previous record for a non-election year was $272, from 2005.

The relatively higher averages of the 1980s and early 1990s were due largely to two factors: the lack of any limit on PAC contributions to candidates until 1988 and, for the next six years, a contribution limit that was higher than it is today. Starting in 1995, the maximum annual contribution was lowered from $1,000 to $500, which eliminated larger contributions and contributed to the drop of the average in subsequent years.

The 292 state and county candidates in 2007 who received at least one PAC contribution averaged $4,088 in total PAC contributions. The 362 state and county candidates in 2008 received $4,118 in PAC contributions, on average.

Cash on Hand

In recent years, PACs as a whole have ended election cycles with more money than they had on hand at the start of the period. For example, the committees reported a total of about $480,000 more on hand at the end of 2008 than at the start of 2007. At the end of 2008, PAC ending balances totaled $4,660,876.

III. Contribution Recipient Categories

PACs continued to support the types of candidates who have received the bulk of their contributions in past years. Legislative candidates, who were on the ballot in 2008, were most likely to receive donations. Incumbents and Democrats were two other groups that were more likely to receive contributions, as were candidates who ultimately won their elections in November 2008.

Office Sought

Contenders for the House and Senate received 85 percent of all contributions to state and country candidates in the 2007-08 cycle, or $2,271,159. That is an increase of 4 percent from 2005-07. A possible reason for the increase was the absence of races for the six statewide offices on the 2008 ballot. Statewide candidates as a whole receive a larger share of PAC contributions in statewide election years, due to increased activity by incumbents and the emergence of additional candidates for those offices. Statewide candidates received $249,190 in total PAC contributions for the two-year cycle.

PAC contributions to state and county candidates by office sought 2007-08

	Legislative	Statewide	County	Governor's Council
2007	$1,008,478	$117,990	$64,320	$3,150
2008	$1,262,681	$131,200	$82,300	$14,825
TOTAL	$2,271,159	$249,190	$146,620	$17,975

On the Ballot

Candidates who ran for state or county office in 2008 accounted for the majority of PAC contributions, continuing a longstanding trend. A total of $2,182,374, or 81 percent of all contributions to state and county candidates, went to candidates who were on the 2008 ballot (legislative and some county). The remaining contributions went largely to committees whose candidates were not on the ballot, such as statewide candidates, county candidates including sheriffs and district attorneys, and incumbent legislators who left office during the 2007-08 election cycle.

Success of Campaigns

PACs usually gave to candidates who ultimately won their respective contests in 2008. Successful legislative candidates in 2008 received $1,966,389 in PAC contributions, or 89 percent of the total contributed by PACs. Unsuccessful legislative candidates received $173,750 in PAC contributions.

Party Affiliation

PACs once again directed the bulk of their contributions to Democrats in the 2007-08 election cycle. Democrat candidates and committees received a total of $2,667,357, making up 93.3 percent of all contributions. A total of $166,637 went to Republican party candidates and committees. The remainder went to candidates and committees that were not members of either of the two major parties.

Incumbency

Candidates seeking re-election are more likely to receive PAC contributions than those who are not. PAC contributions to legislative incumbents on the 2008 ballot accounted for more than $1.85 million, 70 percent of the total for the cycle.

IV. PAC Characteristics

Number of PACs Contributing

The number of PACs organized with OCPF is a fluid number, with various committees organizing and dissolving throughout an election cycle. The number of PACs registered with OCPF at any one time has remained at just over 300 in recent years. A total of 313 PACs were registered with OCPF at the end of 2007 and 305 were open at the end of 2008.

The level of activity of PACs varies, with many committees reporting significant activity, and some posting few receipts and expenditures. In recent cycles, up to two-thirds of all PACs have been active contributors to candidates in any one year. A total of 198 PACs reported contributing in 2007 and 218 did so in 2008 (the record is 221 set in 2006).

The number of PACs reporting contributions to at least one candidate for state or county office in the entire 2007-08 cycle was 235. The two-year figure is higher than either number posted in 2007 (198) or 2008 (218) because some PACs contributed in only one of the two years, resulting in an overall total that is higher than any single year. Of the 235 PACs, 194 reported making contributions in both years, while 41 did so in only one year.

Top Contributors

PACs representing labor, business and professional interests continued to dominate in terms of contributions to candidates. Of the top 20 PACs in terms of total contributions, 17 represented unions or labor organizations, including firefighters, police officers, teachers, plumbers, ironworkers, retired public employees and transportation workers. That is an increase of two from the 2005-06 cycle. The remaining three PACs on the list represented professional or other business interests, including realtors, beer distributors and new car dealers.

Eighteen of the PACs on the most recent top 20 also appeared on the 2005-06 list (the two new additions are the 1199 SEIU MA PAC and the Boston Teacher Union PAC committees). The number one committee in 2005-06, the Retired Public Employees PAC, finished at the top again for the 2007-08 cycle. The Retired Public Employees PAC has reported the most contributions for each of the last six election cycles, since 1997-98. The PAC has also finished first in total contributions to candidates in 10 of the last 12 years, finishing second to the same PAC, the Mass. Laborers District Council, in 1998 and 2002. The latter PAC finished eighth in the 2007-08 cycle.

People's Committees

A people's committee is a form of PAC that receives contributions only from individuals up to a maximum annual amount that is indexed biennially by OCPF every two years and is now $147.² Contributions from people's committees do not count toward a candidate's statutory limit on annual aggregate contributions from PACs.

The number of people's committees organized with OCPF remained the same in the 2007-08 cycle with 12, equaling the highest level recorded.

A total of $319,735 was donated, representing 10.2 percent of all PAC contributions, an increase of 2 percentage points from 2005-06. The 2007-08 amount was the highest total contribution total ever, exceeding the previous record set in 2005-06 by more than $100,000. The 2007-08 percentage of total PAC contributions also set a record, exceeding the previous mark of 8.8 percent set in 1998.
